Possessing nearly 20 years experience in Geographic Information Systems and Surveying, Nathan Morrow has led development of information systems for extensive meta-analysis and implemented solutions to spatial information and mapping for several multilateral and non-governmental organizations. Major research efforts include measuring 12 quantitative and qualitative indicators consistently across 1400 development projects every three to five years in 55 countries. While serving as Chief of Party, Nathan Morrow negotiated with multi-lateral partners and the US government to facilitate the movement of food to those who needed it most in four Southern African countries during one of the largest humanitarian responses in history. Leading regional level country-based consortia, he supports facilitation of activities managing the regional commodities pipeline, liaison with donors and partners, serving as secretariat for steering committee, and project closeout and evaluation. In addition to program management, Nathan Morrow is active within Academia providing program training and development and intensive summer educational programs.
